Don't lengthen your stopping distance by choosing inferior replacement pads. Stay with Bendix.

Source: Bendix testing. Stopping distances are simulated based on FMVSS-121 Hot Stop and Recovery.

A Complete and Quality Hardware Kit

Hardware may be an oversight to some, but it plays an important role in product life. Some pad suppliers don't see it the same way as Bendix.

Bendix provides a complete aftermarket (AM) Pad Kit with all the necessary hardware, retainer bars, pad retention springs, shear adaptors, and pads. Some aftermarket kits are incomplete, and fleets are expected to reuse components that may run the risk of failure, or damage the caliper, carrier, rotor, etc. For example:

The Pad Retainer Spring keeps the pad in place during brake applies and vibration. Weak pad springs allow the pad to move during those events, eventually damaging the caliper and carrier.

The Shear Adaptor aids in brake adjustment and running clearance setting, while acting as a fuse to protect the brake adjuster. Most AM kits do not provide this part. Or they provide an inferior design that shears at higher torques, which can damage the ADB internal adjuster mechanism.

Failed adjuster / Requires caliper replacement
